We.Stream, the secure mobile WiFi hotspot, expands its offerings with new day bundles which can be used worldwide. The daypasses will be released during the Passenger Technology Week, which takes place between 9 and 12 April in Hamburg. Thousands of professionals from the airline industry gather there to get inspired by the latest technology innovations.

The new daypasses are available from only $7- per day and offer unlimited internet in more than 100 countries worldwide. With this pricing, We.Stream claims it offers the best deal to world travelers who want to go online always and everywhere. World travelers are now able to save on their data roaming costs, without being forced to use unsafe public WiFi.

We.Stream is growing rapidly thanks to its successful reseller model, offering its resellers recurring kickback fees. This model, the new pricing levels and the advantages that the product offers to travelers, makes We.Stream a perfect addition to the portfolio of amenities provided by airlines and cruiseships.
